Join Kat O'Connor on her third painting trip to the awe-inspiring Greek island of Skopelos! Once on the island, students will paint among the constantly shifting silvers of olive groves, along the shores of the Aegean, and in the quiet sanctuary of a monastery. A day will be spent at the fabulous chapel of Aghios Ioannis, which was the setting for Sophie's wedding in Mamma Mia!

Instruction will focus on gaining confidence in painting and drawing on-site. Mornings will be spent learning how to develop strong compositional studies, preparatory sketches, and color studies as reference for completing works en plein air and in the studio at a later date. Afternoons are free to explore and develop your own work, and critiques will round out each day.

Students will work in their favorite medium—watercolor, pastel, oil paints (traditional or water-soluble), acrylics, or colored pencil—and should have a basic understanding of that medium.

Course instruction will involve lectures, one-on-one time with Kat, and group critiques. Cultural workshops include classes on Greek language, history and culture, as well as an evening of Greek dancing and traditional music.

Our class will both begin and conclude with visits to Athens, highlighted by tours of the Acropolis and the magnificent new Acropolis Museum. We'll dine in lively tavernas and explore the quaint streets of this legendary city. Class size is limited, so don't wait to sign up!
