Membership Report: (reported by Christopher from an email from Greg)

Special thanks to Tim and John Michael for all the great organization and work on the Boston Globe Show!

Special thanks to Leia for the fantastic YAM show, as well as Christopher, Sue, Carol, Helen and all the volunteers that made teen Night a great event! Although I could not attend, our students and their families were amazed with the student work and the entire night's celebration! And also special thanks to the Art-All-State group who organized all the student interviews, panels, mailings and all the behind the scene efforts to make the process seamless for students and art educators. Thank you!

(Cory)Concern: Non-internet using Members aren't as well informed as those who receive our email newsletter. The main issue is the time constraint - by the time someone can produce 100+ written documents, the information is already old (i.e, board meeting announcements, etc).

I have some ideas, for example if we came up with a list of meeting dates and locations 6 months or a year in advance, we could send that out as one mailing, maybe as a postcard. If information changed, we could call those individuals to inform them.

But I'm not sure or clear if we should do a mailing for every job posting or art show that we normally send in an email blast. For one, it's very expensive, and secondly, it's too big of a job for any one person to do by themselves. But it's important to keep these members in the loop as well as everyone else?
